

Presbyterian Church, Tallahassee, Florida

Presbyterian Church in Tallahassee, Florida, organized in 1832, is the oldest church in continuous use in the State of Florida. The building of this church was commenced in 1835 and completed in 1838. The towering steeple is 90 ft. high, which houses the original bell still in use. The balconies on three sides are supported by solid hand-hewn pillars and no nails have been used in the wood work of the roof same being mortised and pinned.
